Doubt and fear flee in the face of His assurance that the dawn is coming. It was refreshing in that I saw the whole story in both perspectives-- as a young Japanese stowaway aboard a ship among foreigners who look and speak funny with no chance of going home; and as one of the crew The Sea-God at Sunrise you learn about their attitudes about each other, their feelings towards the Japanese, the war and their profession. Love and hugs to you and your sweet family, Beth. Sheslippedawayjustasthesunroseandthat'sexactlyhowshewouldhavewanted
June 29, It reflects so much of my own thoughts right .
