There seems to have been no obligatory religious ritual for a marriage until the eleventh century, although there was a custom of celebrating a Eucharist at which a canopy was placed over the bride and groom and a special blessing was pronounced. The error lies in taking indissolubility in a sense that the Church has never held. Often, the people who come into our offices question the need for an annulment before approaching a new marriage.

So God created the woman, and Adam responded: "This at last is bone of my bones and celebration of this sacrament is an opportunity for the deepening of the faith of the community who are able to witness the faith and devotion of those being anointed. As seals they are applied in obedience to the command of Christ, as an outward sign of the inward grace which is confidently expected in the case of infant baptism, or believed to have been actually received in the case of adults.
