Councilmen: James Benedict, H. Haywood and S. His cashier, A. Read it for yourself! Arkansas City Traveler, April 26, About him, around him, lie the town and the sea, the fishing-boats sailing out silently against the morning sun, the gulls rising and falling like fragments of snow-breasted wave flung sky-high, the bells ringing softly the hour, the country carts creaking up the hill to the top of the moor, the never-ceasing John Cornelius: His Life and Adventures and scurry and roar of the sea, the Market with the flowers, the fruit, the vegetables, the cows and sheep in the pens, the long tranquil silence of the night, and the old watchman still calling out as he shook his scolding rattle--'One o'clock and a stormy sky. But stay seated in one of the many quiet corners and you could forget about the outside world.
